JOSEPH HEALY JOINS NAUTILUS AS SENIOR MANAGER WITHIN CONSULTING GROUP

COMMACK, NY – April 7, 2008 – Nautilus Consulting announces that Joe Healy has joined the firm as Senior Manager in the Commack, New York office, where he will manage multiple engagements within the construction claims consulting practice. Joe has over 15 years of experience in the construction industry, with a diverse background in construction and construction claims preparation and analysis working on projects based nationally and internationally.

Joe has honed his ability to analyze project documentation to determine delay entitlement and responsibility, as well as analyzing project schedules to quantify the time impact of delay. As a result of his analysis, Joe regularly offers guidance to clients on what actions to consider so as to improve their position in a claim situation.

Joe's project management experience includes developing and presenting claims for extra work and time extensions on both public and private projects. He has worked with outside counsel during the prosecution and defense of construction related claims in both litigation and arbitration. His experience and education enable him to anticipate the needs of counsel, and present timely and expedient additional considerations to strengthen the case.

Prior to joining Nautilus, Joe was part of a team that provided construction oversight on a $300 million office tower in midtown Manhattan. He also has management experience with the construction and renovation of various federal, state, and private healthcare facilities.
