NAUTILUS ADDS 3 CONSULTANTS TO ITS CONSULTING GROUP

COMMACK, NY – May 12, 2008 – Nautilus Consulting announces that it has added three (3) consultants to its Commack, New York office.

Joseph Healy joins Nautilus as a Senior Manager and will provide additional leadership within the construction claims consulting practice. Joe has over 15 years of experience in the construction industry, with a diverse background in construction and construction claims preparation and analysis working on projects based nationally and internationally. Joe was formerly a manager in Greyhawk North America's construction claims group.

Gina Prince was hired as a Project Consultant at Nautilus, and will oversee various engagements pertaining to CPM scheduling and schedule delay analysis. Gina has over 18 years experience having worked on a great variety of projects, including, roadways, mass transit/rail, wastewater treatment plants, hotels, hospitals, schools, office and retail buildings, condominium complexes, casinos and sports stadia. Gina was formerly with The LiRo Group.

Patrick Feehan, was hired as a Consultant at Nautilus. Having recently graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute with a Bachelor of Architecture, Patrick will contribute to the consulting practice at Nautilus, providing support to the construction claims group as well as the CPM scheduling group. During his education Patrick gained valuable experience while working for Jones Lang LaSalle, a financial and professional services firm specializing in real estate.
