Amy Phillips has joined Nautilus

COMMACK, NY – October 1, 2009 Nautilus Consulting is pleased to announce that Amy Phillips has joined us as Regional Director. In this role she will be supporting the on-going domestic and international corporate expansion plan; establish a Mid-Atlantic base of operations; identify new markets and services; coordinate marketing, business development and public relations activities and; augment & expand on Nautilus' activities in trade and industry associations.

Amy is an expert in strategic planning, marketing and business development within the professional services industry. In addition to this role of strategic planning, Amy has over 25 years of extensive operational, development, and consulting experience in private and public real estate. She has worked both domestically and internationally on a wide range of commercial projects including hotels, corporate commercial, cultural, convention centers, airports, retail, themed entertainment and mixed-use. Commercial development expertise includes: market and financial feasibility studies, competitive analysis, site analysis, due diligence, space plan and programming, development management, finance packaging, operations development, management selection, A/E/C selection and A/E project management.

Amy has a Bachelors Degree in Business Administration with a focus on Management and Marketing. She is an active member of the American Bar Association's Forum on the Construction Industry, the Urban Land Institute, and sits on the executive committees of Women in Construction and the Leukemia/Lymphoma Society. Amy frequently lectures to industry, trade and corporate groups on strategic planning and corporate expansion, and presents professional development programs to a wide range of participants including lawyers, developers, builders, architects, engineers and consultants.

Amy's knowledge of the construction industry, coupled with relevant experience and education, enables Nautilus to offer unique insight and expert advice unmatched by our peers. We invite you to contact Amy at (202) 590-7610 or by email at aphillips@nautcon.com for support on any construction issue that you face.
